	Rural Development is an overriding agenda for a country like India which has 65 percentage of its population living in rural areas and where agriculture contributes to nearly one fifth of the Gross Domestic Product. Understanding the rural economy, role of local institutions and rural life in general is important for a management student and hence many of the management schools have incorporated rural immersion modules in their curriculum. The immersion programme of Thiagarajar School of Management, Madurai – the Development Immersion Programme (DIP) was instituted as a platform to give students first hand exposure to rural life and livelihoods. The first year PGDM and MBA students attend the DIP module. The objective is to provide students an opportunity to interact with rural populace thereby exposing them to their lifestyle, values, social structure, institutions and economy. The immersion programme will help them identify real life problems in the rural world and come up with solutions for the same.

The expected outcomes of the Rural Immersion Programme are:

- Students understand rural communities, their lifestyle, livelihoods, economy and institutions
- Students identify challenges in the local economy and identify business solutions that could help the local communities to overcome these issues
- Participants understand the concepts of social entrepreneurship and are able to come up with business ideas for solving rural development issues.
- The students are expected to become more socially responsible and are motivated to contribute to the well-being of the larger society.

1. Introduction

Rural Development is an overriding agenda for a country like India which has 65 percentage of its population living in rural areas and where agriculture contributes to nearly one fifth of the Gross Domestic Product. Understanding the rural economy, role of local institutions and rural life in general is important for a management student and hence many of the management schools have incorporated rural immersion modules in their curriculum. The immersion programme of Thiagarajar School of Management, Madurai – the Development Immersion Programme (DIP) was instituted as a platform to give students first hand exposure to rural life and livelihoods. The first year PGDM and MBA students attend the DIP module. The objective is to provide students an opportunity to interact with rural populace thereby exposing them to their lifestyle, values, social structure, institutions and economy. The immersion programme will help them identify real life problems in the rural world and come up with solutions for the same.

The expected outcomes of the Rural Immersion Programme are:

- Students understand rural communities, their lifestyle, livelihoods, economy and institutions
- Students identify challenges in the local economy and identify business solutions that could help the local communities to overcome these issues
- Participants understand the concepts of social entrepreneurship and are able to come up with business ideas for solving rural development issues.
- The students are expected to become more socially responsible and are motivated to contribute to the well being of the larger society.

2. About Thiagarajar School of Management and Rural Immersion Programme

Thiagarajar School of Management is one such B-School which not just focuses on educating the students on the business and management tactics but also enhances the students to be a socially responsible citizen which is of importance to our society. Every student at TSM is instilled with a thought of serving the society in some or other way and TSM creates many platforms to achieve this. No wonder, TSM gives weightage to this program as any other normal courses in the curriculum.

Rural Immersion Program is organized for the I year PGDM and MBA students, in association with an Alumnus from IIM-A. The students are put into a rural learning during the first week of January for PGDM and first week of February for MBA.

The course designers of TSM are very conscious that learning should not be confined only to class rooms. RIP is a well-structured program where students work in teams to come up with successful business plan. The program's agenda is to groom the student's entrepreneurial abilities and give them a glimpse of how business models are created. The program focuses on social entrepreneurship where students are taken to various rural business unit.

The students are divided into heterogeneous groups and are allotted rural areas and a specific working community. The objective of the visit was to inculcate social entrepreneurship training. The team members are taught to propose a social entrepreneurship business plan embodying the necessity elements of a original plan. The stay at villages enlightens many students to understand how the society around us still lives with a poverty driven condition

The concept of becoming a social entrepreneur was the core take away. As business students, creating business models out of the social problems was brought to us as a niche area. Social business models not only cater to the concerned, but also to the society.

The students present their learning before an elite jury. Rural Immersion Program serves as a great platform in making them understand the concern areas.

This program is a carefully planned part of the curriculum that imparts confidence to students in entrepreneurship.

3. Development, Social Entrepreneurship and Management Education:

India still lives in its rural areas, and the village is the back bone of the country. Rural development and diversification of rural livelihoods is hence important to ensure overall improvement of the countries economic indicators and a more equitable development. Rural/social entrepreneurship can be considered one of the solutions to reduce poverty, migration, economic disparity, unemployment and develop rural areas and backward regions. Social entrepreneurship is the attempt to draw upon business techniques to find solutions to social problems. The key differentiators for social entrepreneurship as against regular enterprises is discussed in the article on “Social Entrepreneurship: The Case for Definition” by Roger L. Martin & Sally Osberg<sup>1</sup>. According to them, the value proposition for an entrepreneur revolves around markets and is designed to create financial profits which are essential to the sustainability of the enterprise. Social entrepreneur aims for value in the form of large-scale, transformational benefit that accrues either to a significant segment of society or to society at large. A social enterprise targets an underserved, neglected, or highly disadvantaged population that lacks the financial means or political clout to achieve the transformative benefit on its own. Social enterprises certainly generate income, but what distinguishes social enterprises is primacy given to social benefits. This programme is designed to sensitise students on the needs and issues in rural areas, and the opportunities as well. The orientation to social entrepreneurship will help them to use their skills in management for entrepreneurial pursuit of social impact.

4. Rural immersion Vs Academic Learning

Rural immersion facilitates experiential learning. Experiential learning is the process of learning through experience, reflection and doing.

Experiential learning premises itself on the immersion of the learner in actual life experience and engaging with the milieu of practice; the opportunity to reflect by herself/ himself as well as receive observations and feedback from peers, mentors, supervisors and members of the milieu itself.

It is distinct from other learning processes since the learner plays a more active role. Academic learning facilitates learning through more abstract, classroom-based techniques, whereas experiential learning actively involves the learner in a concrete experience, and hence has more involvement and ownership from the learner.

5. The Structure of the proposed module

15 candidates along with a professor are expected to participate in this programme. The duration of the programme will be 10 days tentatively from 22nd July to 31st July, 2019. The course module will have the following elements:

1. Case study on rural/ social entrepreneurship
2. Guest Lectures
3. Field visits to understand local issues or business opportunities
4. Identification of solution and developing the same into a Management case study. 5

7. You are expected to conduct yourself with utmost professionalism in dealing with your mentor, team members, colleagues, clients and customers and treat everyone with due respect.

9. Expect constant and continuous objective feedback from your mentor and other team members and we encourage you to ask for and provide feedback at every possible opportunity. It's your right to receive and give feedback – this is the ONLY way we all can continuously push ourselves to do better.
10. Have fun at what you do and do the right thing – both the principles are core of what BYJU'S stands for and we expect you to imbibe them in your day to day actions and continuously challenge us if we are falling short of expectations on either of them.
11. You will be provided ₹20,000/- per month as a stipend. This is inclusive of all the office related expenses (Phone Bills, Internet etc., if any)
